The profound polluting of the Willamette River has taken decades to accomplish. The plan for the clean-up appears to lack the necessary funding for the massive project needed to return the river to a condition that does not threaten human life and the non-human life that lives in or near the river. On other concern is what will be done with the waste dredged from the river. It is critical that this disposed of in a way that will not pollute another area.

Thank you for your efforts to restore the river, and good luck.
